

MARVEL @ The True Source of True Love

by MJ Kazmierski @ www.GiveTheWorld.org

OPENING QUESTION

This microessay will be a lot longer than usual – more than 60 seconds reading time – because it is about love, probably the most complex, interesting and powerful phenomena in our universe.

Like art, love is tricky to define in ways any child can understand – yet like the arts most of us have some experience of love and know what it is even if we don't know how to describe and define it.

Can love be understood through logical scientific thinking and always empowering for us whenever we need it?

The answer to that question is a resounding YES.

If love is something we can access and harness any time we like – this could be the best news of all time...

You may have heard about Black Holes – collapsed stars which stop shining and giving light to neighbouring planets which provides the potential for life and yes – love – to flourish in otherwise endlessly cold, dark, dead space.

When stars burn out and collapse they become so dense and heavy their gravitational pull can suck in anything that comes too close and becomes absorbed forever into those cosmic portals of darkness and dying. Or perhaps in time we will learn they are actually cosmic doorways to parallel cosmoses and dimension.

For now, here in the Solar System after thousands of millions of years of evolving from simple cells to becoming the most powerful creatures on Earth and far, far beyond – we can appreciate that love is not essential to the evolution of any species – evolution is driven by simpler needs, such as food, shelter and sex – yet the potential to love exists in our universe and wouldn't it just be divine if we could grasp and access the true source of true love any time we or others need it.

I imagine many of you think love is something beyond you and you need to seek it out in others and have them love you back to feel your life is complete.

Feeling in love is the greatest emotional state imaginable.

Think of love as a White Hole which allows you to access an unlimited amount of loving energy for yourselves and for others any time you like. Black Holes are so dense they even suck in light, which has no mass. Inside each one of us is the totally extraordinary portal we can open up and channel loving forces and energies through in a universe which is otherwise totally dark and cold and lifeless – any time we like – how?

Let's embrace this most extraordinary potential and destiny... To understand and give love as much as long as we can in a universe which allows us to do it just here, just for a while, but thereby affecting countless people for all time to come in positive, loving ways.

Yes, loving acts shape the world we live in and all future histories too – that is a fact only we humankind can grasp and make use of – by loving, we radiate positive energy which will affect countless people in countless positive ways.

To open this portal you need to learn a little – how about spending a few years learning to melorecite (sing all by yourself) two or three hundred of your favorite songs. When your mind is filled with lots of lovely melodies and lyrics combined it rewires your emotional programming.

Songs come for free from the cosmos and Earth is the only place we can live, love and enjoy those lyrics and tunes for as long as we exist. And then some – those who craft and perform classic songs live on in our memories forever.

A few or a lot of songs – some memorised off by heart, some not – will fill your very being with the cheapest, greatest art form in the universe.

Lyrical literature which gives stories we can learn from combined with marvelous melodies which give us the inspiration and strength to perform loving acts even if others are incapable of channeling love and opening that White Hole Portal within.

Make a list of the greatest songs you adore and rather than just listen, letting them flow in and out of you, hold on to them. Sing along. Just for yourselves. This will help open the White Hole portal and allow you to be filled with and radiate light and loving energies for yourselves and others for all time without ever losing any yourself.

Love is a real life quantum phenomenon – the more of it we give away, the more of it influences us positively and allows us to keep channeling more and more love through that White Portal within.

We devote so many of our lives to seeking love outside of ourselves, yet it has always been accessible through that poetic portal within each and every one of us.

Birds, whales, elephants, crickets – the whole animal kingdom is roaring and singing to grace others with their energy and presence. Human beings – our minds the most powerful computational devices in the observable universe – are scared of singing and loving others because we don't know how love works and how to achieve a Win-Win situation in which loving others is a source of the most profound joy for you and for them – without ever fearing that loss or rejection will dim and weaken the loving light within.

Do not aspire to be rich and famous through the arts and songs – money and fame do not unlock the White Hole Portal within. Speak, sing, support others using the energy many songs uploaded into your brain provide.

Songs combine the oldest art form in the universe – music – with the most complex art form – lyrical storytelling – to do 3 fantastic things possible on Earth only.

Entertain – they amuse and make us feel great which opens our minds for them to

Enlighten – teaching through lyrics and stories lessons which are essential to our development, to then

Empower – giving us energies and motives to live more loving lives any time we wish, thanks to the bank of songs uploaded and embedded in our highly complex and very emotional minds.

If humans can really imagine, describe and explain countless things in our ever expanding and endlessly explorable cosmos – with other worlds in other cosmoses or dimensions accessible through quantum portals we don't comprehend yet – they can become full of light and love if they take the time out to sing countless classic songs for others and themselves. These could be stories or rhyming fables for young readers – which you perform in melodious fashion.

Yes, quite simply allow classic lyrics and tunes to Entertain, Enlighten and Empower you and the White Portal within will open and allow unlimited amounts of loving energies to come through and change you forever – you will glow with love, which you will feel for yourself – because those songs will clearly explain that seeking and finding love is part of your destiny, and your path towards happiness and fulfillment is often just like the loves of others in those songs – making you feel much less alone.

In this way you will become a cosmic lighthouse, blessing others with the love you feel when accessing stories and songs crafted by the greatest minds in human history – Chopin, Sting, Madonna, Tracy Chapman, Bruce Springsteen, Leonard Cohen, Tom Waits – the list is endless – the light you access and fill your whole being with always there when those melodies and verses light up your intellect and imagination and give you the power to always love yourselves and others even if they do not or hate you in return.

That loving light which fills anyone who uploads great Stories & Songs into their brains channels through you and the cosmos cannot be dimmed or turned off by those who are not on a loving path.

There is only one planet we know out of trillions of other heavenly bodies in trillions of galaxies beyond the Milky Way where singing countless classic songs can be done free of charge any time our brains need them – it is our destiny to love and communicate in positive, cooperative, generous ways – songs cost nothing to craft and share, and yet when you think about them they are sources of endless energy you can draw on to fill yourself and others with loving energies and meanings – becoming the most powerful Loving Lighthouse imaginable.

Rejection, loss, death and departures will not close the portal within. Timeless, epic songs which take your imagination and emotions into new dimensions will rewire the way you think and feel completely – allowing to fill your mind with songs which amuse, teach and empower to you live among others and never run out love for yourselves and them.

I speak from experience – at the age of 50, after speaking to many musicians and singers in Poland, England, Canada, Sweden, Ukraine and other places, I simply started singing without any tuition. Singing is just extending the vowel sounds in our speech and varying the Tone & Tempo of the words our mouths produce – anyone can learn it and feel the extraordinary positive power you will always have at your disposal when you fill your mind with countless classic Stories and Songs. Just like the rest of the most extraordinary animal kingdom in the observable universe being born and singing alongside us on this utterly unique Oasis Starship Earth.

Songs & Stories are everywhere – radio, shops, schools, theaters, tv sets, the Internet of course – which is the largest multimedia library in the history of our perfectly priceless planet.

Sign up to our 1001 3-Booq Singles Series – you will then receive regular doses of great Polish Stories and Songs translated into English – the most popular language on Earth – these will be filled with lyrics, language learning exercises and illustrations for you to color in when you print out these 3-Booq Singles and create your own GiveTheWorld.org Biblioteq filled with the teleporting 3-Booqs you shall receive as printable PDFs and turn into priceless hand-made treasures in minutes using ancient Japanese book-binding techniques anyone old enough to read can learn and enjoy any time of day or night.
